MIA is a civil-society monitoring agency that systematically records and evaluates instances of anti-gypsyism in Germany. The agency aims to shed light on the manifestations and extent of antigypsyism in German society and to raise awareness of the problem. The intention is to illuminate the dark field of antigypsyist prejudice in Germany and to expand suitable measures to combat it. We cooperate with associations, consulting and anti-discrimination agencies and other civil-society organizations as well as government institutions. In addition, we offer qualification seminars on the topic.
